I've found a small but maybe important detail with regards to the amazing trilogy u/gherkinit has posted on SS - I can't post there b/c my account is not old enough yet. In the first part of his trilogy he explains why the January sneeze happened in January:

So this left us asking **why January****?

We had the obvious answer already, the SEC claimed that retail single handedly pulled off one of the largest pump and dumps in history with zero collusion...but did Daddy Gensler tell us the truth?

Something had to be different about January's cycle specifically

Then we stumbled across this little tidbit that had been staring us in the face for months.

ETF and Equity Leaps expire not once, but two times in the Dec-Jan Cycle

Now what I've found is that he uses the [CBOE Options

**Equity LEAPS® expire in January. Index LEAPS® expire in December, January, and June.****

According to Gherk **LEAPS for those of you that are unaware present a far higher amount of gamma exposure than quarterlies**." Now, the Equity LEAPS expire only once a year, and that is in January. My guess is that they are way more important for GME than the Index LEAPS, in which case the upcoming expiry in January 2022 could lead to a new heavy rip, or even Moass - even though I have to admit that unfortunately I'm completely smooth-brained and have no idea about financial things.
