Yes sir. I've started filling individual DD writers so I can find their shit. Even when I sort by new all day long there's things that end up in hot that I never saw

When ever a post from SS goes viral it no longer shows on my Home Screen. Have to open the subreddit to see it. Noticed probably 3 months ago.

Reddit issues and irregularities around voting anomalies, redundant and strange feeds, post suppression, shadow banning and more; You're not alone if your are seeing and experiencing these things!

Discussion

After writing a brief question post 'Seriously, what is happening with reddit?' many apes commented or DMd me to confirm that they are seeing or experiencing the same issues and irregularities around redundant and strange reddit feeds, voting anomalies, post suppression, shadow banning and more.

I'm sharing this in its own post because I think there are a lot of other apes out there that are experiencing the same thing. Home screens that show irrelevant information; quality posts gaining no traction; upvoting and saving a post only to come back and see that it is still saved but no longer showing upvoted; early downvotes, attacks and criticism on a post in an attempt to discredit it - and yes, the post simply not showing up in feeds for some apes.

It is easy to be disheartened when the effort put into writing and sharing the GME story and DD only results in its failure to gain any traction. This is real. It is happening and apparently at an escalating rate. [Are we getting closer hedgies?] It is damned discouraging when writing DD and a carefully formulated post gains no votes or traction, while ridiculous screen shots and comments can get hundreds if not thousands of votes. Personally, I've written so many posts, submit them, only to have to resubmit them - and have them gain less than 25 votes before falling into the hereafter. I just ended up deleting them.
