Just wildly speculating here, a second split is coming. After the dust settles with the current fuckery going on with how the DTCC and brokers handle this split, RC and board come out with a kill shot.

A 3:1 split

3 new shares for every 1 currently held.

Each share started as 1, then turned into 4, which turned into 7.

This would leave $GME with roughly 914 million shares issued and outstanding, and approximately 86 million authorized in reserves.
