

Title: I've been invested in GME since January and loaded up majority of my stake at $210 during March hype. I've been averaging down since. What's your GME buying strategy?

I read all the DDs and believe the apes are right. My first 10 shares was at $420 and loaded up more along the way. I loaded up about 100 shares right before one of these GME highly anticipated quarterly earnings and been buying 10 shares whenever the price is dropped $10 lower than last purchase prices. I have not sold any shares. TBH, I started buying GME as a speculation, but now it has become a true long-term investment. I will sell when the MOASS happens (and invest back after the run up), but if it does not happen I'm willing to hold the stock indefinitely.

What's your buying strategy? How long are you willing to wait for the MOASS?
