Hey there, I'm an European ape and I've been holding since September. A friend of mine started talking me about GME and now, here I am. I've learnt lots of things through this journey and I can only be grateful to you, guys.

Unfortunately, my friend told me to use eToro 'cause it is pretty easy considering that it is my first ever investment. I'm kinda scared 'cause I have most of my shares on eToro.

I managed to buy new shares before the November squeeze which have already been sent to Computershare but right now I'm totally broke. I'm a university student who don't know how to handle this situation. Right now I'm in loss and I can't see any solution. I'm also holding for my aunt and I can't liquidate my positions 'cause I'll have to explain her these losses. Moreover, euro is stronger than dollar so is not so convenient if I cash out in loss.

What should I do? Should I wait for the next squeeze, cash out and then buy back? It's so frustrating. I think we're close. I hope you'll get how I feel like. At least I have my XX shares on Computershare. Can't stop, won't stop, Gamestop from ■■
