Hello Friends. Long-term smooth-brain lurker here.

I haven't seen anybody on here point out the phrase "maniacally focused on the long-term" from the 14-A just posted.

What defuq does maniacal mean? Way too many syllables for me to know so I had to turn to the world-wide-web to figure it out.

ma-ni-a-cal

1. Suggestive of or afflicted with extreme mental derangement: a maniacal frenzy.

2. Characterized by excessive enthusiasm or excitement: a maniacal interest in gambling.

3. Wildly irresponsible: maniacal drivers.

One might want to assume the team is referring to meaning #2, but I have a buzzing in my third testicle that they really mean #1 and #3. They know this shit is about to pop off! They know that the spring is wound so tight that liftoff is soon! But what fun is a company if all the vested employees sell out as soon as we start launching. You would have to be mental or at least wildly irresponsible to not sell when this takes off!

I believe they are preaching diamond hands and hodling just like us common folk with foreign objects leaking out our ass.

Before I bounce, I just want to say to my fellow GME internet friends, that this journey has been a major source(probably unhealthy) of my dopamine for the last year+. You guys feel weirdly like friends. When I see a meme that is 4 levels deep my eyes water up a bit and I experience an usually jacking in my tits.

How amazing is it that we are playing a game against a team that has infinitely more resources, infinitely more wrinkles(debatable), owns the referees, and re-writes the fuking rules along the way. And we are winning! LFG!
