My question is, are we still expecting the GME team to announce something?

If this month passes and nothing, I think it will look grim. We're on the eve of the 2021 squeeze and there's a lot of action supposedly happening with all these calls expiring today.

I have faith they will pull through for us and announce something. Doesn't necessarily mean they will launch their NFT marketplace this quarter but even just a hint of their plans will help a lot with the current market sentiment and negativity.

Let's face it. Most of us are in the red right now and many of us put more money into this stock than we were willing or expecting to lose so far. 99% were certain last year MOASS would happen. Plenty of us are living in hard times now with COVID causing rapid inflation and unemployment.

If GME does not announce anything this month, how much longer do you expect them to remain quiet?

Every month new competitors are coming along with their own NFT marketplace now. If GME plans to compete they need to really release something huge at this point or they will face massive backlash and this stock price won't recover IMO.

Not FUD at all. This is a serious investment for me. I'm sure many of you feel the same way but too scared to post here because you'll be instantly labeled a shill. Healthy skepticism is important.
