So I just got off the phone with Fidelity; finished DRSing my last bit of GME shares (proud to say 100% DRSd). The representative told me something that stood out to me, and I do not believe is true. He said that CS can not sell my shares...UNLESS I transfer them back to Fidelity, only then would I be able to sell. They also said the more common "Fidelity does not lend out your shares". Am I misinformed regarding CS (although I am sure you can sell with them)? Or is Fidelity trying to FUD apes from DRSing? Cheers!

Regardless of the fact, HODL strong, DRS, and this is not financial advice. I just like the stock (and am tired of IOU's).

Sorry if this is already a thing. I thought it was worth posting.
