

Title: WTF Florida, saying manipulation is legal under TOS??????

Author: karasuuchiha

Created 2022-01-31 20:25:23 UTC

Permalink: /r/GME/comments/shb6pd/wtf_florida_saying_manipulation_is_legal_under_tos/

Url: https://www.reddit.com/r/wallstreetbets/comments/sh4hup/discovered_communications_within_the_us/?utm_medium=android_app&utm_source=share

Linked Post Content:

Here is a very digestible format, you may find this quite interesting.

Each image has a page number that corresponds directly with the Florida litigation that it was transcribed from, so your next step is to check out the source material to see if this is the real deal or not.

Source: Raw PDF Florida Litigation

- Note: At the top of each image in this post, there is a page number that corresponds to the litigation page number from which it was transcribed

Also of Note:

From The SEC GameStop Report, The NSCC officially stated that all PFOF brokers had their premium components waived because according to the NSCC, it was not the brokers' fault a stock was popular.