

Title: Other than participating in PFOF, do we have any reason to distrust Vanguard?

Author: StockNovice2021

Created 2021-10-20 13:24:20 UTC

Permalink: /r/DDintoGME/comments/qc0srq/other_than_participating_in_pfof_do_we_have_any/

Url: https://www.reddit.com/r/DDintoGME/comments/qc0srq/other_than_participating_in_pfof_do_we_have_any/

Fidelity gets the most love on these subs, but I rarely hear about Vanguard. As I understand it:

- They don't route orders to Citadel or anyone else
- They didn't turn off the Buy button in January
- They have over $7T AUM, which makes them one of the larger players
- I have heard a few stories about them taking a while to DRS, but I haven't seen anything about them not having purchased the shares for their clients like we've seen with some other brokerages.

Is there any reason why I (or anyone else) should be concerned about having GME shares with Vanguard when MOASS kicks off?