I recognized last week that I am really good at making money, but I have become really lazy, really sloppy, and complacent when it comes to making my money generate more money. I for some reason have allowed myself to become financially disorganized. So much so that I've started to lose track of just how much I earn, generate, save, and spend.

This isn't a boast or a brag..this is a Confession.

Currently I have eight different banks..multiple accounts with each. Six brokers..multiple accounts with a couple. Five Savings Apps. Two Crypto trading accounts. Two Forex accounts.

Needless to say, I've become too spread out.

I spend a combined average of 80+ hours per week working and when I'm not doing that I'm doing research in addition to stock trading. But it wasn't until last week that I sat down and tried to figure out how much I actually get paid and honestly can't tell you how much I do get paid and when I get paid. I've become that focused on grinding. The grind itself has become bigger the gains.

When it comes to stocks..I've become a stock hoarder. I've become a crypto hoarder. I've become a CD hoarder. That I can admit. I've become lazy and unfocused. Simply buying shares in companies at times without any real concern as to the direction in the short term. More due to the fact that months ago I've already done the research and the due diligence and at times has simply traded based off of triggered alerts set months ago. I've entered into options contracts in the morning and exited with profits the next day. Reckless. Or at least what I could consider reckless.

A lack of discipline and direction. Maybe I have become bored, maybe on some level it gives me a sense of comfort and security. Maybe I'm just someone who doesn't know how to actually make and have money. Maybe I'm still learning what individual success lives like instead of looks like.

Who knows.

What I do know is that this upcoming week my focus will be on closing out those positions that I just have sitting there. Doing so and being okay if the price explodes. Closing those bank accounts and consolidating brokers that I have and do not actually use. Stepping back and resetting my overall view. Whether the market as a whole or just a few sectors is Red/Green. It's time to take profits in some areas and use those profits to average in others.

It's time for me to wake up and reimagine my financial future..maybe it's time for a new challenge...
