Happy New Year!■ And with a new year comes a new short story.■ This time focused on China, GME, American banks, and the neverending balance of collateral keeping the markets from total collapse. I gathered all the DD on the variety of different loans being forced into the market by financial institutions just to be bundled into collateral to be traded in with the banks for 10x leverage and reinvested to inflate the markets.■ I'm hoping this fun but educational approach would make it easy for the average person to digest this information. Most of the art/music is from myself along with others. And I hope this story gives you some happiness to start this new year. Enjoy!■
