I'm holding xxx gme shares and I'm from Europe so DRS is taking forever, but anyways;

I've been following the market for some time, and I just don't get what the fuck is going on.

1. Inflation rate just hit 7% in the US, HIGHEST in like 4 decades, why are markets moving so normally? How is nothing falling apart?

2. Why is Gme moving so fucking weird? I've been in since december 2020, and right now I just don't get it. One day we go +20% and the next we go -25%, then some normal days trading sideways, and then it's starting again?

Is there any explanation except from shorting and illegal stuff? And how is everything so well coordinated against Gme?

Tesla goes up 20%, falls, and all articles ask when it's going back up. Gme falls 1% and then i see 5000 articles calling it a dead memestock.

what the fuck is going on?
