So with the monkeypox being mentioned more frequently it might be worth looking into putting the term Ape on the backburner until things settle down.

We've seen how incredibly incompetent the government's have been dealing with Covid, though it didn't help that the virus and its effects were played off as conspiracy theory from the very beginning and even to this date. If the monkeypox spread much more during the same time we launch it will definitely push us into an unfavorable light.

A bunch of people calling themselves Apes celebrating the stock market crash as we lift off while people are dying from monkey pox... Just saying we will come across as a bunch of assholes, and we know the media is going to eat that shit right up. It's not like they're not already trying to frame us and GME in the worst possible light.

I'm not talking about putting the term Ape to rest never to be taken up but if we could come up with a different term as a temporary replacement. Only thing that comes to mind would be Astronauts or crayon connoisseur(yes had to google how to spell it)

You guys got any other ideas or am I maybe overthinking this?
