The results come out on the first of June and meeting is on the second. I was curious if someone with a little more weaponized autism would be able to figure out what they need to release. Basically take everything that could come out in earnings then compare it with possible moves on the second.

They wouldn't move earnings from the 6th to the 2nd for no reason. I haven't been able to come up with anything but I'm sure one of the savants in here would be able to crack it. This would maybe help us determine some possibilities for what's seeming to be a very interesting June.

Thanks

Stay zen and fuck Cede and co.
