I believe that GameStop is building not 1, but 3 NFT marketplaces.

Power to the players

This is a marketplace for all things gaming. It includes in-game items, skins, and other digital assets. It's a marketplace where you can own and resell your games as NFTs.

Power to the creators

This is similar to the existing NFT marketplaces that are out there already but with higher quality art.

Power to the collectors

This is a marketplace for digital/physical collectables such as coins, sports cards, autographed memorabilia, and so on. You will receive an NFT as proof of ownership with every item you buy.

GameStop also has items of its own, such as the Wu-Tang album, and will distribute ownership as NFTs to all shareholders.

Ryan Cohen loves Apple and he loves the iPhone too. When Steve Jobs announced the iPhone in 2007 he introduced it to the audience as 3 separate things but later revealed it was all 1 device. Cohen is doing the opposite. The world believes that there is only 1 marketplace but soon all 3 will be revealed.

Apple also changed the color of their logo to black and white.

Cohen realized that we can never win a game that was designed for us to lose. So instead, he's changing the game.
