so long story short, I ordered a nice monitor for like 1.5K and it would be a really nice upgrade to my life and I'd use it like 10 hours a day but I always catch myself feeling bad because I don't use money to buy more gme. I don't have a lot of money (yet ;) and only own 2X $gme, and 1.5K would get me quite a few more.

The monitor will arrive in a few days and now I'm wondering if I should cancel the order and buy more gme (which would obviously be great and „the way“, I know) or if I shouldn't set everything on a single card because in the long run if i buy nothing and only invest in gme I may feel like I'm losing out on life if [the great thing you do with lemons ■] let's us wait a bit for it

Tldr: do you apes buy any stuff? Would you recommend (I know, no financial advise) to use all money for stonks or would you recommend living normal life on and only hodling a smaller position but hodling until forever because you don't depend on the gme stonks?
