Debunked? - the company has RadioShack in their portfolio for god sakes - this is a bad shop - and I bet when it all collapses they are gonna get in trouble - I sent info to the doj and fbi on them - we'll see what happens -

If you reached out, stuck your neck out for me thanks!!! I can't post, comment or go to messenger while I'm suspended - I appreciate the support -

Sorry to cause any confusion I was suspended - not banned - I didn't really know there was much of a difference - sorry to cause drama -

This whole system is so corrupt - I'm holding forever -

5:03 pm 3/10- last point - a sr secure loan needs something to secure it - that's why it's called sr secure loan - if handil did not own TCS then what secured the loan? Is the loan still secured to tcs ? Then who pledged it???

Definition - Senior secured loans are debt obligations generally issued by non-investment grade businesses. These loans are usually "secured" by a company's assets, and are typically used to fund a company's growth or cover general operating expenses. The borrower is the company itself, not a bank.

The loan was never secured - it's fraud - I stand by my analysis - even with the ball shit low level information I have to work with -

8:49 - march 10 - Response to BadASSTRADER - the issue is this - BBBY owned TCS when the loan was originated - if you go and look at the loan today its backed by TCS - but the assets were not Handil's assets to pledge - thats why it's fraud - straight up - Pathlight, issued a loan to Handil against TCS assets, but Handil did not own The Christmas Tree shop when the loan was written - It makes the loan no good -

The Christmas Tree Shop was still on BBBY's books - the press release even says this - it says that BBBY is selling CTS... They were not Handil's assets to pledge - the loan is no good -

"Bed Bath & Beyond has entered into a definitive agreement to sell Christmas Tree Shops to Handil Holdings, LLC, including all 80 brick-and-mortar locations and a Middleborough, Massachusetts distribution center. Handil Holdings, LLC expects to continue operating Christmas Tree Shops as a stand-alone retail brand." source - <https://www.bizjournals.com/bizwomen/news/latest-news/2020/10/bed-bath-beyond-sells-christmas-tree-shops.html?page=all>

BOSTON, Nov. 18, 2020 /PRNewswire/ -- Pathlight Capital LP ("Pathlight") announced it is serving as the Administrative Agent on the recently funded $180 million Senior Secured Credit Facility for Christmas Tree Shops ("CTS" or the "Company"), a brick-and-mortar discount retailer with a focus on seasonal products at a value price point. source - <https://www.prnewswire.com/news-releases/pathlight-capital-agents-180m-senior-secured-credit-facility-for-christmas-tree-shops-acquisition-301175932.html>f

The $180 million Facility, which was completed and funded on November 12, 2020, will be used to finance the acquisition of CTS by Handil Holdings, LLC and provide additional liquidity for ongoing working capital needs.

the press releases even say that "the funds will be use to acquire CTS for Handil... I mean... you don't see it???

https://www.reddit.com/r/Superstonk/comments/tax5i3/counter_dd_the_problem_with_udilk mud0002_s/and for anyone else - you cant create a loan thats backed by assets you are purchasing - wtf is that honestly???? The Loan was never backed - much like every other part of this fraudulent system -

Nickel market opens tomorrow and thats gonna cause issues - MOASS incoming!!!

March 10th - 7:17 update - account suspended - i can still edit - We are close Apes... remember to DRS!!!
Ill be back after my suspension *changed from Ban... Keep digging... thank you for the awards!!!

Pathlight Capital used a fraudulent loan to acquire CTS - My other post had 80pct of the content removed - My account is suspended... Ill be back in 3 days... stay strong APE FAM!!!

the loan for $180 million is still out there today - Handil Holdings LLC, pledged The Christmas Tree Shop but did not own the assets when the deal was done - where was the BBBY CEO in all of this? Did Columbia Consultants send other clients to Pathlight???

The loan is fraudulent.

Good morning APE FAM(March 10, 6:25am) - my account got suspended but i can still edit - this - the gyts is this -

TLDR: THE BBBY CEO sold Christmas Tree Shop to Handil Holdings LLC for $250m. Handil Holdings LLC did not have any money - they went to Pathlight Capital and got a SR Secure Loans - the loan was against The Christmas Tree Shop - But BBBY still owned those assets - we got them - I sent info to FBI Tip line and DOJ - this is FRAUD we got them!

I will be back after my Suspension Spread the good word and DRS yo SHITTTTTTTTT!!!!

Edit: I changed from "ban" to "suspension"

My suspension is 3 days and I think they want to silence me for MOASS???? Buckle UP

Handil Never Had the Assets - we found something hugggggeeeee.... Futures getting rocked - possible news from GME today - put your neck brace on!!!

For the comments saying its a "Leveraged Buy Out" - that's FUD - Handhil never owned the CTS at the time the loan was originated. So how did they use the CTS as collateral? This is not a LBO, this is Fraud.

Columbus Consultants may have referred BBY to Pathlight - this is what RC may have meant by "Expensive" - Columbus Consultants should have stopped the deal - they failed in the Fiduciary responsibility to their clients.

March 10th at 8:09am - Suspension Information - It was not a ban - see below.
