Saw a post that got downvoted because title was misleading and OP didn't know how to explain themselves properly:

OP was saying due to the fact that there is high short interest and there are probably 400 million to 1 billion GME shares outstanding due to rehypothecation, in order to lock up 75 million shares, 10-20% of those 400+ million shares needs to be DRSED.

In an ideal world, every ape should DRS 100% of their shares. But we are not in an ideal world and some apes just flat out refuse to DRS anything, for whatever insane reason. But if we want to achieve DRS of 75 million, we'll need an average of 10-20% DRSED from EACH person. If you can pull the average up and DRS 50% or even 100%, the more power to you. But if you weren't planning to DRS anything at all, please please consider at least 10-20% for starters...
