on reddit you aren't allowed to share DD across different subs due to a brigade rule and reddit admins coercing moderators to censor their own subs in such way. One solution is to write in multiple platforms and refer to the other platform for more easy sharing of your DD. Preferably on a platform that isn't owned by a platform that has proven itself to censor such as youtube, twitter. There are many to pick from and chances are you already are on a different one already. I will not make further suggestions to not be biased, and not in the comments thats up to you to discuss and follow your heart.

When a platform censors you, it means you aren't welcome, don't just complain. There are others that won't censor you. It's up to you to find out, cause that too would be censored.
