Don't have enough to post in the other subreddit since I don't really post/comment much. But I'd like some input if possible.

I recently began work at a firm, and as a part of their ethics or something they requested that all my holdings be moved to them. I already have retirement with them and an individual account, but I did DRS my GME shares. They're requesting I move them back, and I'm currently in my second escalation with the ethics team to keep them. Has anyone else experienced this, and if so any tips for a baby ape trying to keep my DRS.

Thanks :)
