There is no beginning and end. Its like a train, for every one asshole that gets kicked off, 3 jump on. The reason all this is coming to light now is to settle this before the people on the sub you are prt of lock up their shares. For once those shares are locked up, the bad actors are trapped for good.

What you guys are engaging in is a negotiation. There will be no winners or losers, only a deal that will be reached. In this case, a price paid per share.

Your post is close. The reality is the game is finally up and the inevitable is going to happen. Your comment on the citadel post is close to the truth. A news article is like a star. By the time you see said content, it has been and gone and is merely an image of what has been happening. The meltdown wasn't a legal tirade or a ploy to keep investors. It was the actions of a fall man. The government have dirt on Citadel and need a fall man for the next leg down and also to masquerade the mass insider trading officials have been participating in. You could even say the play by the government was more convoluted by assuming they took advantage of a pandemic to essentially pump the positions they bought at the bottom but i digress. The tweets were nothing more than drawing attention from other bad actors.

Its a game of leverage, not in the financial sense. We spare you if you divert attention from us and take the hit. These institutions don't take financial risk, rather litigation risk. Do with this information what you will and don't ask any questions.

Have a good day.

The future is imperceptible 😊
