Walked into the Park City Mall GameStop in Lancaster, PA and asked about the NFT marketplace and if they were fielding a lot of questions. The associate behind the counter had no idea it was launched and the manager began a tirade on how NFTs were just made up of pointless code and you could lose it by just pressing the delete button.

I did my best to defend the marketplace, but the managers opinion needs to be adjusted by more of us going in there and touting it.

We also talked about the distribution center in York, PA and he had nothing but disparaging comments about it. Again I defended it, but is this really the kind of people we want customer facing on the retail side?

If you are an ape in Lancaster, PA and frequent the Park City Mall, I wanna make sure we change this managers mind when it comes to The NFT marketplace. It's not just for images, but games, dlc packages, and entertainment content in the form of shows and movies.
