Ok, so you're a multi-millionaire with zero knowledge of the markets but daddy told you to park your money in a hedge fund to keep the wealth so Shitadel is holding your money.

They promise you good gains and quarterly returns for a small percentage (2 & 20, industry standard) and things are good for a short time until one day you can only access a small % of your funds...

Then your quarterly returns stop coming in...

Then they say if you want to pull your investment it'll take 5 years in total...

Then you find out that the place your money is parked needed billions in bailout from industry competitors to stay afloat...

So how long do you think you, even as a made up, silver spoon fed little rich boy would stay with a company funnelling your inheritance just to survive another day just cause "billionaire asshat" doesn't want to admit defeat, and lose all your money anyways, to a bunch of retards who invested in GameStop?

How much more of shitadel will Ken give up just to stay relevant?

It won't be long, fellow apes.

Stay classy.
