I have a question for u wrinkle Apes. So GME is looking to add shares to the pool. How does that really help? I know their talking about a split. Ok sounds good but being that trying to DRS the float doesn't that just add more shares to manipulate? I mean if you have 70 million shares and whatever percent of those have been DRS now add say 7to1 to that it's still only that same percentage of shares DRS compared to the amount added to the pool? Im saying by adding more to the pool only a percentage of that is DRS and the rest are open to buy and short. The way lc it the only way to seal it is a recall. And with all of the manipulating that's been going on and hasn't been a recall yet y would this change by adding shares? The way things are going now by the time the split happens instead of having 1 shares for 220 dollars we will have 7 shares worth 20 or whatever they can manipulate it to, buy then.
