This is the mail i sent:

After the GME split two transaction appeared, one that shows the selling of my shares and the other one showing the buying of 4 times the share sold at a quarter of the price. I wanted to know if it's related to the software used by degiro or a taxable event happened and i am responsible for taxes related to capital gains?

This is their responce:

To implement the split at a technical level, a fictitious transaction is performed (it does not create capital gain/losses) where the share are sold and bought according to the split parameters. This operation do not create any taxable event and is only a technical workaround.
