We're coming up on a year now for GME. The price has gone up and down. We bought, held, and DRS'd. We have even hyped the business by buying products and promoting them.

We have not gotten any clear official announcement or contact focused on the shareholders. We got a little bit of direct contact during the voting in the summer. Cryptic tweets and digging in source code on GitHub dont exactly count.

Long term holders of other businesses don't allow this kind of silence with their money. I made exceptions for Cohen, I assume a lot of you did too.

Could the time be coming when we need start pushing Cohen, the board, or someone for real communication?
