Dunno who might need to hear this...Yeah a single GME might be worth millions, but the squeeze could possibly take months. Try to secure at least another share, obviously more if you can afford. If you have a pressing financial situation, it'll probably be tempting to sell your share at something like 50k, which a lot of people might do (if we're being realistic.) But you'll have sold your only ticket to the moon and you most likely won't be able to buy back in. So try to have at least one share DRS'd for the infinity pool.
