

Title: I just gonna say it... The real FUD is this the fight over investment strategy.

Author: syfus

Created 2022-01-08 16:16:01 UTC

Permalink: /r/GME/comments/rz3d5c/i_just_gonna_say_it_the_real_fud_is_this_the/

Url: https://www.reddit.com/r/GME/comments/rz3d5c/i\_just\_gonna\_say\_it\_the\_real\_fud\_is\_this\_the/

I'm going to get downvoted into oblivion for this but it needs to be said. I have been an observer since I bought in last January after I watched the rise, the rally, the sneeze, the buy button get disabled, the options shut off, and every rise and fall since then. I am a simple XX holder with partial DRS'd (though I have not fed the bot, we exist and we are many) and I have been here for the ride all along. My portfolio isn't 100% GME, nor do I think it should be, but that is my decision alone to make. We are all individual investors who passionately like a stock. I started seeing posts drum up around GME in late 2020. Being a gamer and having been burned by trade in's (lets be real, the joke for years has been "oh you got 36 games there? cool, thats $10 in store credit"). But then I started to do my own research, a lot of which had been compiled throughout these subreddits, and I was able independently verify this information and come to my own conclusion of how I wanted to make my own investment. I've played options and shares for GME and many other stocks. Arguably I am much more bullish on crypto and had been investing in that long before ever putting a dime in the stock market. But I will say this, I always take a long term approach in businesses/services/technology I either use, or see myself using. GME is no different in that respect. In a little over a week, I will have hit 1 year of holding GME. I and many others have been here this whole time, even if we have not been vocal at all. And I speak for no one else when I say this, I will continue to be holding GME regardless of MOASS. Well, at least so long as their turn around continues and they stay away from their old boomer model of continuing to squeeze every single penny out of passionate gamers.

DRS, Options, No Options - These last couple weeks have been filled with all sorts of finger pointing. Then the price gets manipulated up in AH then shorted back down the following day and the battle rages again and again. "Options are FUD" "DRS is the only way!" "Options are the only way MOASS will happen!" All of this is fud, all of this is being stoked to sow discord. When you have no valid counter argument, you discredit the author. There are few better ways of invalidating a thesis in the eyes of the general public than that. If you invalidate the person and sow distrust, you invalidate their ideas, so when they are shared, those who may consider the idea no longer focus on the idea itself, but consider the source and weight that heavier in their consideration.

I personally have seen a massive shift over the last few months away from DD and into constant hype, pack mentalities, and "shill" brigading. Is the DD done? Maybe, but I highly doubt it. The price action in AH has more than shown that our markets are manipulated in ways we as retail still don't understand, nor do we have access to the information that may even lead to that understanding.

All I really know, I am here for the long haul. If MOASS happens, then great, if it doesn't, then I'm still holding shares in a one of the greatest turn around plays in business history. One that will be taught for years to come.

I'll leave you all with this simple statement. Do your own research, approach any investment in a way that makes the most sense for you. And never, ever, make a move based on something someone said "will make you money!"...