

Title: How could you ever trust

Author: Rottenaddiction

Created 2021-09-22 17:03:21 UTC

Permalink: /r/Autisticats/comments/ptbye2/how_could_you_ever_trust/

Url: https://www.reddit.com/r/Autisticats/comments/ptbye2/how_could_you_ever_trust/

So I was leaving my house a few months ago and of course as it always occurs, a split second realization. One of my family members was watching the trashiest tv channels as usual, the news.

Just before I had opened the door, I hear this chick spit some utter garbage from her other asshole. "Lying is a form of intelligence"! Literally irritated me and still does.

So if this dumb bitch just shown her hand why would you believe anything the news spits anymore? It seems to b a common practice for the news to just slip stuff in just before commercial break.

Since I was a child I only wanted to watch the Simpsons due to being a poor pleb lacking cable. Father would yell if I was watching and immediately yank the remote from me to put the most assssss program on, the news.

We all have a power, you could use that for good or evil. Knowing such, I've always leaned towards the good in the world. Oddly enough telling ppl the truth as times gone by has made it increasingly harder to garner a desired outcome, as if ppl value lies more than the reality.

Let's break down what lying actually does.

Lying is a form of deception, thus can b utilized to trick someone. Why would you need to trick? Well surely bc you have ill intent, trick/fool/swindle/ruse/fleece I mean I really shouldn't have to go on bc most that read this would b educated enough to realize it's all part of an illusion.

Well if someone/thing is trying to said trick or deceive you, why would you ever play into that horrible relationship? Are you just a sucker whom is so distraught that you can't break from this destructive burden full relationship? Would you continue to commit to someone who's abusing you?

It's really not just the news, you got your banks and government all tied together pullin your chain.