You have to step outside of what you know and how you feel to realize who you're battling against.

Stop thinking "wtf this is criminal" or "where is Gensler and his merry bunch of fuckwads?" Or even worse stop thinking that there's nothing that can be done about the blatant manipulation of our beloved GME.

Step back and imagine BEING a criminal. A true POS who doesn't give a fuck about who they hurt, what it cost them or how deep they need to dig themselves to come out on top.

This isn't a sanctioned MMA fight with rules and regulations (albeit it should be, but that's for another post). Your opponent would kick you square in the berries from behind to win. They would send team of "journalists" to vilify or discredit you. They will call you crazy, attempt to drag your name through the muck. They will stop at nothing to NOT LOSE.

Lucky for you, the only way out for them is for you to sell. They can play options, stripping premium, crushing IV, kicking the can for a bit, but the simple fact of the matter is, if you don't sell, they LOSE.

Stop expecting this to be a fair fight. Stop expecting your morality to be matched by theirs. They have everything to lose, we've never had anything in the first place.

No sense in watching the ticker all day, missing out of life or being in a bad mood because of the price. We all know it's fake.

Until it isn't.....
