So I know that these SHFs are attacking us with some psychological bullshit, but at this point since I'm holding for almost 2 years I'm really afraid to sell. Just for you to understand I bought an apartment and I have the money but still got a shitty credit just to not sell my shares. I don't know what they teach in Harvard but at this point most of Us are more afraid about missing the squeeze than losing all of our investments.

So fellow Apes have a nice day, hold strong to your GME tickets and see you at the moon tomorrow ;)
