In November, 2021 Gamestop filed a trademark for "Gamestop Kids" & "GS Kids". I believe this was done with the idea of a takeover of BBY by "Gmerica".

In RC's letter to the BBY board, the final section is titled: Evaluate a Full Sale to a Well-Capitalized Acquirer. In that section, he writes that " The market is not giving the Company nearly enough credit for BABY's value". He talks about BABY like he knows there is H U G E potential for it, because there is. The hardest part about selling to babies is capturing their parents. Gamestop has 40 million parents' information, why not sell to their customers children?

Do we know any fund that is well capitalized, and who may own a significant portion of GME...?
