I am a mid XX holder of GameStop since the sneeze, zen af. Half are in TD Ameritrade the other half in E*Trade. I remember reading a while back that td and E*trade take weeks if not a month + to get over to computershare. I called td a few months back to remove margin from my account and asked how long to drs and I was told about three weeks. Is that still the case? Am I best off transferring my shares to fudality then DRSing? I know, I should have done this a while ago. But, better late than never right? I was hoping to start my drs request during a strong run up just as a fuck you to my brokers but going to hop on asap. Thanks in advance.
