First let me start by saying the only reason I still have a Robinhood account is to get the tax documents from last year. I have unlinked my bank and have had $0 in RH since transferring it all to Fidelity (before the later DRS push was known). The app was removed from my device a long time ago.

That being said I just got an email from RH saying that there were some trades that did not execute at the expected price. The only fractional transactions were GameStop.

**Any suggestions what I could do with this massive reimbursement?****
