I spoke with an agent with Questrade today to ask about transferring directly registered GME shares from a transfer agent into my TFSA. They confirmed that it is possible to do this. I asked how it would work in terms of TFSA contribution limits and they said that the DRS share certificate will have an amount tied to each share (purchase price I assume) and that would be the amount deducted off your TFSA limit.

I am amazed that this is possible and have been avoiding 100% DRS mainly because of the annoyance of tax implications as well as wanting to feel more immediately able to access my shares for buying and selling. No plans to sell but I have a family and kids and I would be lying if I said I wasn't worried about tying my shares up in computershare and not being able to access some of my money if faced with emergent needs.

Maybe I missed it and someone already posted about this, but to me this is HUGE and I will be looking to DRS the rest of my shares now. I just have suck it up and pay the $300 fee to DRS (WTF Questrade why are you charging so much???)

My account is too young to post to Superstonk maybe someone can post this on my behalf?
