It's dividend time for the XRT ETF coming up within the next 2 weeks. Last dividend for those not wanting to subtract March by 3 was on December 20rd. The dividend in December was at least 75% larger than the previous 3 dividends and also the largest XRT dividend ever.

The next dividend is set to be even bigger (currently looking at 1.94% yield compared to 1.64% in December). On 12/20/2021 the dividend amount was 0.933 compared to the second largest 9 years earlier on 12/21/2012 for 0.289! The significant increase in December's dividend also correlated with a nice GME price increase of 21.24 over the week running up to the dividend date. This is costing the SHF more every quarter (XRT SI is currently 694%) and I love it.

Credit to u/takenotes617 who has been looking into this with me today. I pulled this data from Nasdaq's historical data as well as the XRT ETF channel and ycharts. Always remember to Hold, DRS, Be Chill and drink your ovaltine. Rocket emoji, monsoon, bottom text.

Edit to add XRT history chart.
