But there have been a few very targeted posts lately.

I will not tell you what to do. I will suggest however, that you think about some things I have observed...

1. Why would anyone else in the world worry about MY money and MY investments?
2. Why would anyone out there feel a need to paint anyone in here in a certain way?
3. Why would anyone out there feel a need to sway anyone's opinion on any certain subject?
4. Why would anyone feel a need to try and paint the forum as a collective rather than a collection of investors?

At the end of the day, it's YOUR money. It's YOUR investment. It's YOUR risk and YOUR gain. When other people worry about what is YOURS, they rarely have YOUR best interests in mind. When other people worry about YOUR involvement with a group, site or source of information, they likely don't want you to see something. When other people start TELLING you what YOU have to do, they probably have some agenda.

Think for YOURSELF. Ask Questions. Let those answers lead you to the next set of questions. Learn.

Or don't. Do what you will, you will anyway...as my Grandfather used to say.

I like Gamestop. I like the stonk. I HODL.
