Downvote me all you want, but if society is collapsed, it won't matter one damn bit how innovative or cool a gaming/e-commerce/metaverse company is.

What many of you probably still call "wild conspiracy" is in our face and at the door- the planned controlled demolition of the U.S. and global economies, and the "great reset" technocratic corporate world government takeover by Klaus Schwab and friends.

Trust and believe that if you plan to have any semblance of a stress free life, you will need to be REALLY FUCKING RICH before they succeed with these plans.

Not for lambos and vacations. No friend, those luxuries are soon to be relics of the past.

I'm talking seeds, weapons, farming tools, water sources, land, building a community to survive what's coming.

Collapsing the currency is just one small step along the way to global corporate tyranny.

With each passing day, I worry that the dam will break before our GME battle has concluded.

And now with nuclear war just seemingly a few bad days away giving the foolish actions of all sides involved, (look at the Pentagon report on a 2019 Russia/Ukraine war simulation....projected 1 billion dead),

We need our tendies now to try and do whatever we friggin can to survive the bigger nightmare on the horizon.

Ryan Cohen is a great guy, but he isn't letting you camp out on his property when everything has concluded going to shit.
