You may remember me from my posts digging into actual evidence and timing of swaps among Citadel's market positions. If not, or want a refresher, go HERE to read.

My hypothesis TLDR: Citadel has swaps between meme stocks, GME and $Beds, and KOSS on one side, Popcorn and others on the other. RC found these swaps, his August 2020 buy blew up these swaps leading to the sneeze in Jan 2021, approximately 133 days after the swap triggered. The SHF's returned the swap in June 2021 through a huge FUD campaign and share dilution. I predicted RC's 2022 buy would cause similar upward pressure on GME, Beds, and force a response from Popcorn approximately 133 days after triggering the swap a second time. RC is timing all of his moves to cause max pain against SHFs.

August 1st, 2022 was 133 days since swap was triggered.

It's been a wild week! Craziness with the split divvy, random Chinese tickers, AA interview with the rat, and BBBY coming out of left field! My theory predicted all of this, well, maybe not the Chinese tickers. Seriously WTF is up with those??

Let's compare my theory to recent events:

GME stock price: Note the up trend starting on August 1

POPCORN stock price: Same up trend, but more controlled.

<https://preview.redd.it/oq0l9ao6prg91.jpg?width=1125&format=pjpg&auto=webp&s=8e97d21a2aaae3349b538d5a0b17353ad4598129>

BBBY stock price: Huge lag. It was the weekend before it took off:

To summarize: We are seeing GME and POPCORN in lockstep, POPCORN slightly lags. BBBY is clearly reacting somehow to the other two.

Take a step back, why would these three tickers look so similar? MODS: these are factual statements intended to show the difference in market narrative of these three distinct stocks.

1. A retailer in the gaming/technology space transforming into a digital marketplace launching imminently, 125,000+ proven retail owners, and $1B+ cash on hand?
2. An entertainment/movie company bleeding cash, 4.5% insider stock ownership over 36 owners, impending recession and pull back in household spending, and a gimmick business plan with no link to long term core profitability?
3. A retailer with an interim CEO, earnings miss, and sudden large AFTER HOURS movements?

A note on after hours activity:

The only clear explanation is swaps as I outlined in my previous post. Even the timing is exactly as I theorized.

What I think is happening? RC is playing 11 dimensional chess. In January 2021, we didn't have a big enough rocket. We couldn't hit escape velocity (Definition on wiki). So RC has been working hard, strapping many rockets together and carefully orchestrating the timing with enough fuel for Uranus (engineers call this Margin of Safety, plan for Uranus, target the moon):

Fellow Superstonkers pointed out this tweet from May, after the swap was triggered, foretold the date of more upward pressure:

He tweeted this July 27th, the day after Citadel would have failed a reconciliation of the swap.

Compare RC's behavior to AA going on Cramer and their $APE thing. RC is actually building a tangible business in Web3 and NFT. We know that is real because we all have Gamestop wallets installed and activated.

We also know this from that one interview RC gave...on that one show...you know with that guy...he was reassuring all of his retail supporters...What? RC hasn't given a single interview since buying into GME? He only uses cryptic tweets? Maybe he learned a thing or two from Elon and public statements regarding stock he owns.

We are close! Eyes on the prize, don't get distracted now.
