I was told by my employer that I could not rollover my 401K into a IRA unless I quit my job. My concern is that INFidelity will screw with my tendies during the huge constriction. Especially since they have recently partnered with the financial terrorist organization known as Citadel. I have every reason to be concerned.

I want to roll over my GME shares from my 401K to a IRA so that I can DRS them, but I can't so I feel stuck.

I'm tempted to quit my job as a result but I don't know exactly when the constriction will take place.

What are you thoughts pertaining to the potential fuckery that FUDelity may pull when $hit finally hits the fan?
