So market crash incoming seems ever likely. With the hedges who have shorted gamestop, would they be short a magnitude of other stocks which, when crash, pays off and they can continue to hold their position in gamestop and keep suppressing the price??

I'm sure I've overlooked DD that's dove into it, so if you know of one and can link it, thank you kindly. Or a list of their long positions or where to find.

Because of this, I truly think DRS is super helpful in forcing the hand, because that actively works against their method of maintaining the status quo.

Anways thanks again for helping me make the most of my available time. Not giving or asking financial advice.
