The results of this poll were really insightful to what you want in this community. And though the levels of desired privacy vary, it's obvious that the majority want a sub that is somewhat FUD proof, if at all possible. And of course, admin has warned us to keep to ourselves anyway and of course we want to comply.

We will be moving towards total privacy in phases so as to not leave anyone behind, and the public will still be able to view the important DD we've been able to compile here for a while.

As of market close this Friday, Septembrrr 17, GME Jungle is taking the privacy up a notch. Only approved users will be able to post and comment.

The public will still be able to lurk and view all content on the Jungle. We will not be going fully private just yet.

I feel this is the best compromise at this time for our privacy but also to not leave any apes behind.

Admin has asked us to warn the community before going fully private, and you will be well forewarned should we choose to go fully private. This will likely happen around 4 digits per share, at the latest. It's worth noting that admin was quite against us going fully private and insisted it wouldn't fix any of our issues. They suggested we use special flairs to help distinguish trusted members of the community (which is literally just describing their community power-up program- remember that going fully private basically makes your subreddit unprofitable for the site so ofc this is the advice I got...)

DRS is literally the reason we are staying visible to the public. This information is vital and we have become a trustworthy source of this valuable information for the $GME communities. Please continue to share this information within the boundaries of the brigading rules of course (don't link to or from SS sub basically.) Remember there's a shortcut to the CS DD series in the sub menu!!

For approval

The only requirement for approval at this time is an account created before July 10. That was the week of the jungle's migration and we don't want to welcome any possible new shill accounts created to FUD the sub.

Message modmail with the word "approve" in the subject line and we will get to you ASAP! Please be patient, we are doing pretty well with keeping up so far with approval requests!

You do not need a second approval. If you were already approved, you're good to go!

Basically this is the same system we have right now for posting, but it also applies to comments as well- You must be approved.

We will continue to approve new members after September 17, for the foreseeable future.

Checking to see if you're approved

Thank you guys for being an amazing community and helping keep this place the best little hidey-hole on reddit. ♥ Don't worry, no ape left behind ■■■
