I tried to exercise my GME calls but didn't get to after having issues and the price dropping I just closed the position before I took a bigger loss. The price went up to 60,000 at one point and I tried to do a close to sell which i saw was a thing in a previous post. But I have TDAMERITRADE and wasn't able to figure it out. Called and they were like no you can't use the premium to exercise your calls. So out of frustration i just closed my position as the call price drastically dropping I just sold at 40,000. Does anyone know more about this sell to close and using the premium to exercise calls. I think i saw on Fidty that you can do that but I'm not sure anyone have more insight into this. Should i leave TD and move all my money to Fid.? mods wont let me use the brokers name but i think its pretty obvious what im trying to say
