

Title: Dividend/unit offering dates potentially match up with futures expiration; and, DRS possibly necessary to receive it?

Author: hunting_snipes

Created 2021-09-17 21:45:57 UTC

Permalink: /r/DDintoGME/comments/pq9iyi/dividendunit_offering_dates_potentially_match_up/

Url:

https://www.reddit.com/r/DDintoGME/comments/pq9iyi/dividendunit_offering_dates_potentially_match_up/

Copypasta from my post in one of the other places:

Remember the part of June's prospectus that states they will either appoint a depository if their choosing or directly issue the individual security 90 days after if the depository (DTCC) is unable or unwilling?

June 9 + 90 days = Sept 7
(Sept 6 = earnings)

If they gave the obligatory 10 day notice (not public, remember)...

Sept 7 + 10 days = Today

Obviously this could be shifted forward any number of days. I don't want to get anyone addicted to hopium and this could be a big nothing but the timing seemed pretty conspicuous to me.

When I went back to look at the prospectus for the 90 day thing I noticed there's some very strong language in there about this security being offered ONLY TO REGISTERED OWNERS, NOT BENEFICIAL OWNERS. When I read this months ago I assumed it was to keep shorts from getting their hands on it, but with Computershare blowing up right now, I'm thinking, wait a minute... I'm on mobile but I'll upload a pic when I get home. My teats were just so jacqued and chafing I couldn't wait to post.

(Before anyone screams FUD—worst case scenario if I am interpreting it correctly, beneficial owners—ie anything not registered directly in your name—may not get the security being offered, but the fact of it being offered as we know should set off the MOASS, so you'll still be rich. And can buy your own NFT then. That's the WORST CASE I can imagine.)

I am but a smooth that gets hemorrhoids when I try to squeeze out a wrinkle, so someone pls double check my work and correct me if I'm wrong. Thoughts/discussion/feedback welcome.