Is very simple. Ask questions. Seek answers. Ask new questions based on those answers. Rinse. Repeat.

There has been a user who has been on my case trying to place a slant against me and almost seeming to make it out that I am defending information in a biased way.

Untrue. ALL information should be verified at the personal level. I speak neither for nor against ANY certain info in these posts. I am just trying to show the methodology of a manner of thinking. More of a HOW to think rather than a WHAT to think. You can choose to follow this methodology or reject it. You have free will and your own ideas/agendas.

You will each have a bias. Be aware of that fact. It's necessary to avoid reaching false conclusions. Even I have a bias. It's simple human nature. I try my very best to keep that bias from my methodology posts.

If you have a question that you would like to ask or a concern you would like to raise, I ENCOURAGE you strongly to make YOUR OWN post and let the idea stand on its own merits. Please do not hijack other threads to spread an agenda. To any that feel I have done so in responding to others responses to me, I apologize. Ask me to remove my responses and I will comply (originator of post...not respondees).

In the meantime, I encourage you all to Think Critically. Have a wonderful day. If you choose not to...at least have a day. Remember to have a laugh once in a while. It's really helpful in clearing the head.

I need to include gamestop for reasons.
