We are buying our kids with this KinderJoy egg that is a chocolate egg with a miniature toy with it. The egg comes with a barcode that you can scan on their app called applaydu. When you scan the barcode on the app, it will let you to choose if you want the miniature toy or a accessories. If you choose the toy, the camera of the app will integrate it to the view and if you choose the accessories, looking thru the camera of the app it will integrate it the accessories to all the face it can recognize.

Now imagine GameStop sells products with NFT address bind to it. Imagine GameStop has their Metaverse, On that world looking through your cellphone camera , smart glass , the product you bought with their NFT identity morphs to a cooler object. On their NFT market place you can upgrade or integrate something or even better trade it.

You may say Amazon can copy their business model but how can they match the 4816 GameStop stores where you can actually try out the product and see it physically and Metaversely. Good luck doing that online.

GameStop will always be 1 step or more ahead of competetion
