I think we as a collective GME Ape community have missed a potential huge piece of this story. Credit Default Swaps. Any wrinkle brain apes know how to find them, or where to find them? I KNOW they have to exist. They have to, it is the only way these firms survive after we collectively gut their investment vehicles. Watched "The Short" and it just struck me like a hammer blow. I believe this is the next place to dig. SPY is an index fund...Shitadel has a huge interest in it, and the underlying securities are already starting to slide...but SPY is still strong... Anyone is welcome to provide info. I would love to be wrong, but I do not think I am.
