What if, the HF's and every other party involved, have seen the meme stock problems coming for over a year and have deliberately been pumping the whole market for over a year in order to be able to dump and cover for GME and the other meme stocks? If you see a very large amount of stocks surging over the last year and in particular couple of months, it's unheard of. It would be the biggest retail trap in history, just to save themselves and pay us.
