So after watching the video on Bloomberg yesterday, I was thinking through the whole aspect that Ken Griffin had said that buying memestocks are causing a loss for teacher's pockets and destroying their pension plans.

I can only speculate based on what I've learned over the past 1.5 years with this whole retarded saga. I think they are using these state teacher's pension funds and buying shares of GME stock. We've seen this in the 13F's and originally thought that those states were bulling on GME! ...But again insert meme here of Tyler The Creator saying "well, that was a lie"...

So instead they take those shares that were bought with pension fund money and lend them out to be used by SHF to short. All with HIGH fees and low liability for SHF.

I think Ken Griffin leaked part of their plan, but I am definitely missing some pieces to the whole picture.
